The Collington Capital Group

Collington Capital's purpose is to enable impact-led enterprises, including charities, not-for-profits, and social enterprises, to access impact capital.

Collington Capital aims to bridge the gaps between the participants in the impact investment chain so that impact capital flows effectively to impact-led enterprises.

Olivia Dickson (left), Julia Grant and Kiron Bose (right) are Founder Partners of The Collington Capital Group, with The Harriet Collington Foundation at its centre.

The group comprises three entities:

- The Harriet Collington Foundation is a not-for-profit company facilitating the development and funding of blended finance impact investment vehicles
- Collington Capital Partners LLP is a consulting partnership advising on building readiness for impact investment and designing high level impact investment propositions
- Collington Capital Ltd is an impact investment bank structuring impact investment vehicles and raising investment capital for impact-led enterprises.

The Harriet Collington Foundation

The Harriet Collington Foundation (HCF) has been established to further the legacy of Harriet Collington, her sister Catherine Arnott, and successive generations of remarkable Collington women who were pioneers in their respective fields.

HCF works today with aligned and ambitious partners towards a vision of philanthropic funding catalysing flows of new impact investment to transform the delivery of social impact at scale in the UK and internationally. The Foundation's medium-term goal is to mobilise US$150mn of catalytic philanthropic funding. It will accomplish this by:

- Delivering research, engagement and advocacy to promote strategies and solutions that enable grant funders to catalyse social impact at scale
- Commissioning advisers to help build investment readiness and develop blended finance impact investment solutions to attract impact investment
- Sourcing grant funding for blended finance impact investment vehicles to catalyse the sustainable growth of impact-led enterprises.

HCF's focus is on the impact themes most critical to achieving social justice. At a high level these are better healthcare, gender equality, social inclusion, quality education, and economic development. HCF also addresses the inter-dependent threat of the climate crisis as it works with its partners to secure a socially just transition to a net zero world.
